Word Alive

Recently, someone told me that they could no longer believe in God and life after death because they saw a parent's identity being stripped away by dementia. It rocked their doubt on what it means to have a human soul. This shows that, along with challenges to our ability to care and our distress, dementia also challenges our understanding of what makes a person a distinct human soul.

Following our Dementia Awareness evening, I am aware that we still have a need to continue our conversations about dementia. We will start with that tough question on the human soul and salvation and explore what that means for someone who has severe dementia where most memories are inaccessible, lost or altered.

In the light of that, we can look at how we find we have been able to help those with dementia and maybe pick up on some of the questions that we have. I can't promise an answer, but together we may be able to help each other on the way.

“Therefore encourage one another and build each other up, just as in fact you are doing ” 1 Thes 5:11

Encouragement is awesome. It has the capacity to lift a man's or woman's shoulders..To breath fresh fire into the fading embers of a smoldering dream. To actually change the course of another human being's day, week or life. Charles Swindoll

It is great to hear how God has been encouraging his people. Throughout Scripture we see instructions to encourage one another and verses that are meant to encourage us. It would be great if YOU could forward bible verses, poems, passages, songs etc. that have been of encouragement, I can then include them in the newsletter and we can all encourage each other...thank you
