Letter for you by John Colley

Dear You

When you got up this morning, I was right there, eager to share the new day with you, but in the kitchen over coffee, you turned the radio on. Back into the bedroom it was a mad rush to get ready for work.

So I waited

When the trains were late, you sat idle on the station platform for fifteen minutes. I hoped you might share that time with me, but instead you phoned your friend to get the latest gossip. Finally, on the train, you buried yourself in your newspaper.

So I waited.

At work, of course you were hectically busy all morning. At lunch I thought you might just remember me for a moment, because you paused before you started to eat – but you recognised some people nearby, and the moment was gone. As was the rest of the afternoon back at work.

So I waited.

I hoped I might have a quiet word on the way home on the train, but you dozed off. At home there was supper to make and then the various household jobs to do.

So I waited.

Finally you had finished for the day. You collapsed on the couch with a hot drink and looked around you. I drew closer eager for you to turn to me. But you reached for the remote and on went the telly. I backed off - I know from experience that I can't win when it comes to competing with a quiz show or your favourite soap.

So I waited

Now you are tucked up in bed again, feeling worried about several things and generally worn out. The Bible is right beside your bed, full of my words of love and comfort for you but sadly, somehow, the latest issue of your favourite magazine has been put on top of it so you reach for that instead.

In a little while you will be asleep and shall take up my living guard and protection over you for yet another night. I will wait.

I love you so much that I will wait again for you again tomorrow – but it is hard to have a one-sided conversation.

Your friend Jesus
